English Language Teaching Across Disciplines: World Literature

Dr. Ali Nihat EKEN

English Language Teaching Across Disciplines: World Literature is a course that invites students to become part of an online learning community designed by the course instructor. In this course students go on a literary and cultural journey through a collection of narratives across the world. Through close readings, discussions, presentations and writing tasks, the course helps students gain an understanding and appreciation of literature.

By engaging critically with the texts chosen, students explore, demonstrate, and discuss how authors from other countries reflect their world through their own unique, authorial and artistic modes and how their works can contribute to contemporary global cultural landscape.

The course also encourages students to reflect on how studying fiction can help them as both university students and world citizens.

Required texts: A selection of short stories. E-copies will be provided by the instructor. In addition, films, podcasts, and articles will be explored.

LMS Learning Management System:

Sabancı University SU Course Plus. The course will be hosted online and run by PH Salzburg's partner university in Istanbul, Sabancı University. Students will have access to the course through the link below:

<https://sucourse.sabanciuniv.edu/plus/login/index.php>

(Please log in through "the guest user" option)

Weekly Program:

The program, materials and tasks will be announced through SU Course Plus. It is therefore very important that students follow the announcements on SU Course Plus regularly and responsibly and meet the requirements of the course responsibly.

Assessment:

Students can see SU Course Plus for more information about the weekly-assessed online tasks. Participation is another essential part of the assessment. In addition, students are required to submit two academic papers to complete the course. Students will be guided and supervised for academic writing.

Important note regarding registrations:

After students complete their registration for the course, they immediately need to contact the instructor to have access to the online course.
